The most effective way to prevent crises and provide stability is to reduce the impact of risk factors which requires a holistic approach. Identifying those factors which may turn out to be root causes and eliminating them require, among other things, cooperation and support of host countries and coordinated action among regional and international actors. With 3 million refugees within its borders, Turkey hosts the largest refugee population in the world. In line with the Law on Foreigners and International Protection and Temporary Protection Regulation, Turkey provides basic rights and services such as access to health and education services, social assistance, attorney services and counselling. An Emergency Social Safety Net (ESSN) has been launched. Vocational training and employment opportunities are also offered to refugees. National response plans are prepared to lead and bring together national and international resources. However host local communities still need additional infrastructure investment (i.e. education and health).

Achievements at a glance

Collaboration has been enhanced between AFAD, the coordinating body of the Turkish government institutions, and international stakeholders. A wide range of documentation has been prepared to share Turkey's experience. An increase to 60% of refugee students enrolled in schools. 500 Migrant Health Units were established. In annual public investment programs, investment projects including schools, hospitals and urban infrastructure are prioritized in cities with a significant Syrian population. A comprehensive needs assessment document has been prepared to attract additional financial resources from the international community. A program has been launched to enable displaced people to attend Public Training Centers in Turkey for language and vocational courses and more than 11,000 foreigners attended courses in 2016. The number of refugees benefiting from the monthly cash transfer within the Emergency Social Safety Net reached 250,000. A protocol was signed with TRT World for publicity of humanitarian efforts in Turkey. Preparations for a more active social media strategy were initialized.

How is your organization assessing progress

A multilateral working group in AFAD has been established to examine the challenges of coordination in humanitarian response. Progress is also being followed at the 3RP meetings. Statistics of those benefiting from services (health, education, workforce) are evaluated periodically. Field surveys were conducted among refugees. Social media statistics, TV ratings and media coverage are also assessed to measure the impact of services. The efficiency of ESSN is assessed with field visits.

Challenges faced in implementation

Insufficient, unstable and volatile assistance lacking predictability and sustainability from international community; insufficient advocacy for host countries at the global level; and a lack of strategic collaboration between hosting countries, are the main challenges. Staff turnover in the humanitarian area is high and adversely affects institutional memory. Limits in sharing organizational learning constitute a problem. Difficulties are faced in the involvement of affected communities due to the language barrier, culture etc.

Next step to advance implementation in 2017

Projects will be fostered to enhance infrastructure capacity in the refugee hosting provinces. Integration activities among relevant institutions and cooperation with relevant international stakeholders will be prioritized. A larger education and health network will be established for refugees. A knowledge management framework that integrates collection, analysis and management of information will be installed. Visual media materials for experience sharing will be dispersed. More employment projects and Turkish language courses will be launched. A new measure that has recently been set in 2017 is an Annual Program to upgrade evaluation and monitoring mechanism for all development cooperation activities in Turkey will be implemented.

If you had one message for the annual report on what is most needed to advance the transformation Reduce and address displacement , what would it be

Turkey supports two thousand development projects abroad annually and to date Turkish development actors operated in 150 countries. In these projects, support to local and national systems has been prioritized for long term resilience and sustainability, as in Somalia and Palestine. Turkey has started the preparation of the Disaster Risk Reduction Plan of Turkey (TARAP). The Plan will be instrumental in preventing duplication and investments at different levels of disaster response.

Achievements at a glance

Turkey's development oriented humanitarian operations in countries such as Afghanistan and Somalia support local and national systems for long term resilience. In light of the role of Turkish local administrations in the overall response to Syrian refugee influx, Turkey has emphasized the enhancement of local capacity in its aid operations, particularly in countries affected from displacement. For the preparation of the Disaster Risk Reduction Plan of Turkey (TARAP) existing national and international plans have been reviewed, targets have been set, stakeholders have been identified and analysis work are in progress.

Preliminary workshops are held to get the views of the participants in the ongoing preparation process of TARAP. In these workshops, stakeholders laid out strategies, objectives and activities for the next 10 years. The workshops will be instrumental to ensure better implementation of the project. The outcomes of analysis conducted within the context of TARAP will set the basis for further evaluations.

Challenges faced in implementation

High number of stakeholders from public, private sector adds complexity to coordination efforts.

Where did your organization stand on these issues prior to making these commitments

Turkey places emphasis on the humanitarian-development nexus with a view to bridging the gaps between humanitarian aid and longer term development needs. It supported 2000 development projects annually and reached out to 150 countries. Over the past decade, Turkey has introduced new methodologies and practices. Longer term resilience is also prioritized. Turkey is providing development services including education, health, vocational training for Syrians. In line with its 10th Development Plan, projects supporting NGOs in terms of capacity and financial resources have been carried out. Active participation of NGOs is also encouraged in programs such as "Institutional Capacity Improvement Program at Local Level".

Achievements at a glance

Research and Implementation Institute for Humanitarian Crisis Response was established in Gaziantep. The Institute organized events to elaborate on the effects of the humanitarian crisis in Syria and to figure out how to improve the services provided for Syrians in Turkey. Projects within the Facility for Refugees in Turkey are ready to be implemented. Cooperation between Turkish stakeholders and international partners, particularly UN agencies has been enhanced. AFAD and TIKA has been cooperating in field operations i.e. Somalia and Myanmar. Innovative solutions in the field are in progress. E-food card program allowed 70% saving. Employment opportunities are provided for women in Africa through projects for self-employment. Turkish private sector supported transfer of entrepreneurial know-how to partner countries particularly in infrastructure capacity building. UNDP technical cooperation projects were revised to include social infrastructure projects for Syrians. The WHS has provided a new conceptual approach that has led to the New Way of Working (NWOW).

How is your organization assessing progress

Turkish development and humanitarian stakeholders are carrying out quantitative and qualitative analyses of their respective projects on a regular basis. These analyses are reported annually and shared with public. International platforms like OECD DAC and UN's Development Cooperation Forums also enable assessment and evaluation of the progress. To assess their contributions NGOs and INGOs are also consulted at design and implementation phases of projects.

Challenges faced in implementation

Better coordination among bilateral and multilateral actors providing humanitarian and development assistance are most needed. Stakeholders need to align their activities with the needs assessment document. Different institutional cultures hampered efficient coordination. National legal framework needs to be reviewed for effective implementation of the projects. Authorities of the affected countries should cooperate with the incoming aid teams. Language barrier may hinder introduction of new services (e-food card etc.) to the affected people. More support and engagement of private sector should be ensured.

Next step to advance implementation in 2017

Various development projects in the areas of health, education and infrastructure will continue to reinforce current humanitarian operations in countries like Afghanistan, Somalia and Myanmar. Turkey will encourage international stakeholders for the allocation of more funds for the needs of the refugees. In light of current operations in the field, consultation meetings will be held in 2017 between Turkish development and humanitarian stakeholders. Turkey will push for the implementation of the new humanitarian-development nexus also during the New Way Of Working workshop in Istanbul in May 2017.

Where did your organization stand on these issues prior to making these commitments

Turkey's development projects have been designed in a way that bridges the gap between emergency humanitarian aid and longer term development needs. Longer term resilience including capacity building for the local structures is prioritized in planning and implementation of the projects.

Achievements at a glance

Turkey's development oriented humanitarian operations mainly in Afghanistan, Palestine and Somalia support local and national systems for long term resilience. In light of the role of Turkish local administrations in the overall response to Syrian refugee influx, Turkey emphasizes the enhancement of local capacity in its aid operations, particularly in countries affected from displacement.

How is your organization assessing progress

End reports of projects, feedback and annual reports from beneficiaries or international partners are essential in the assessment.

Challenges faced in implementation

Authorities of affected countries should cooperate with the incoming aid teams. Insufficient funds for capacity building projects, low quality of projects submitted by stakeholders and limited human resources at the local level are main challenges.

Next step to advance implementation in 2017

In order to increase the efficiency of preparation and response to natural disasters and humanitarian crisis, AFAD and OCHA signed the second Plan of Action (2017-2019) on 30 January 2017. With this plan of action, AFAD and OCHA will cooperate to strengthen coordination of efforts and a more effective response to humanitarian needs, and continue to enhance Turkey's role as a humanitarian leader by building its membership of international humanitarian mechanisms.

If you had one message for the annual report on what is most needed to advance the transformation Invest in local capacities , what would it be

Where did your organization stand on these issues prior to making these commitments

Investing in stability in its region and beyond has long constituted an important agenda item for Turkey, particularly in the last decades. Turkey's engagement included humanitarian operations by the Turkish stakeholders (AFAD, TIKA, Turkish Red Crescent and Turkish NGOs) in conflict-affected countries. Turkey also actively contributes to multilateral efforts on different themes with a common objective to enhance stability, like UN Peacekeeping and Peacebuilding, Friends of Mediation and Alliance of Civilizations. Turkey further promotes multilateral consultation mechanisms among countries.

Achievements at a glance

Turkey has fulfilled its commitment to allocate USD 200,000 for the year 2016 to the Peacebuilding Fund. In terms of conflict prevention and mediation efforts, Turkey continued its efforts to enhance the visibility of Group of Friends of Mediation within the UN. Similarly, Turkey decided to convene the Fourth İstanbul Mediation Conference in June 2017 and started its preparatory work. As one of the major international initiatives for promoting peaceful co-existence, Turkey continued to provide strong political and financial support to the UN Alliance of Civilizations. On the other hand, trilateral and multilateral consultation mechanisms to increase coordination and cooperation to enhance sustainable stability in bilateral relations and to formulate joint policies towards regional and global issues are regularly pursued.

How is your organization assessing progress

Periodic meetings are being held at various levels among the related stakeholders to coordinate and update the progress as well as reports produced at the end of certain periods by the stakeholders.

Challenges faced in implementation

The most effective way to prevent crises and provide stability is to reduce the impact of risk factors which requires a holistic approach. Identifying those factors which may turn out to be root causes and eliminating them require, among other things, cooperation and support of host countries and coordinated action among regional and international actors. This coordination not only increases the chances of success but also helps to utilize the limited resources in the most efficient way. Therefore lack of cooperation and coordination is found to be one of the significant challenges faced in the implementation phase.

Next step to advance implementation in 2017

Turkey will continue to assist the UNSG in his efforts to bring forth his vision for a surge in diplomacy for peace. Turkey will utilize all related platforms to strengthen the normative basis of mediation and enhance the UN mediation support capacities. In this framework, Turkey is preparing to hold Fourth İstanbul Mediation Conference on 30 June 2017. Turkey will continue to work on creating synergies between Alliance of Civilizations and Mediation for Peace and fully realizing each initiative's aims. In addition to already existing ones, Turkey will seek to increase the number of trilateral/multilateral consultation mechanisms with other states.

If you had one message for the annual report on what is most needed to advance the transformation Invest in stability , what would it be

Action at the country level to reduce specific risk factors and enhance relevant national infrastructure is crucial. Yet the ultimate success depends on all relevant players to act in concert and to cooperate to support the United Nations to better fulfill its mandate in the area of conflict prevention.

Turkey conducts 2,000 development projects annually and reaches 150 countries. Turkey increased its assistance 50-fold since 2003 and became the 2nd largest donor country in 2015 and the "most generous" donor according to the ratio of its assistance to its GNP. In the last decade, resilience enhancement has become a core part of Turkey's assistance program. Personnel skills engaging in international assistance activities have been developed through training programs. In response to the Syrian crisis, Turkish institutions under the coordination of AFAD develop a professional approach and a sound humanitarian aid system. Emergency Social Safety Net has been launched.

Achievements at a glance

The list of projects to be supported in context of "Facility for Refugees in Turkey" is finalized and the projects are ready to be launched. The Working Group on Action against Gender Violence has been established with the participation of the public institutions and relevant UN agencies to further improve the services provided to Syrian women in Turkey. The number of refugees benefited from the monthly cash transfer within the Emergency Social Safety Net reached 250,000.

How is your organization assessing progress

The number of beneficiaries, end reports of projects, annual reports from international partners are essential in assessment.

Challenges faced in implementation

The main challenges include insufficient funding for capacity building projects, poor quality in projects submitted by stakeholders, limited number of staff to carry out awareness raising activities and layers in fund transfer. Donors should be provided with more inclusive platforms to improve efficiency and transparency.

In the 6th year of the Syrian crisis, Turkey’s support for 250,000 Syrians in temporary accommodation centers exceeds USD 12 billion. Another 2.5 million Syrians living in various cities are provided with services funded by public institutions, local administrations, and NGOs. In these efforts, Turkey introduced cost efficient solutions like the e-card program. On the other hand, Turkey actively engages in international efforts especially after the WHS on diversification of resources.

Achievements at a glance

Turkey offers free health and education services to almost 3 million Syrians within its borders. Disaster and Emergency Management Presidency (AFAD) coordinates services provided to the Syrians in the temporary accommodation centers through the Disaster Temporary Urban Management System (AFKEN), a software program developed by Turkish engineers.
