Deutsche Post DHL Group's commitments

DPDHL Group is the world's leading mail and logistics company, with operations in over 220 countries and territories worldwide. We have a longstanding partnership with the UN – in fact, we have just celebrated ten years of partnership with UN OCHA and UNDP in the area of disaster response and preparedness.

- DPDHL Group aligns to the core commitments by extending its partnership and joint initiatives with UNDP and UNOCHA for a minimum of another three years (until 2019).
- With GARD (Get Airports Ready for Disaster) DPDHL Group and UNDP build up better airport preparedness structures in countries being exposed to natural disasters. Three GARD workshops and one GARD plus workshop will be conducted annually free-of-charge for a minimum of another three years (until 2019).
- DPDHL Group GARD trainers will train new trainers in respective countries in order to upscale airport preparedness in the next three years.
- Following an OCHA request, DPDHL Disaster Response Teams will assist with airport logistics free-of-charge in affected countries in the aftermath of a disaster (up to 5 missions per year).
- DPDHL Group will support OCHA with setting-up and manning the Reception and Departure desk.
- The joint publication between OCHA and Deutsche Post DHL Group “Combining Capabilities – How public private partnerships are making a difference in humanitarian action” points out the relevance of such partnerships in the humanitarian field. Based on the findings DPDHL Group intends to further engage and extend its network with their partners.
